The Algarve has several protected areas with an internationally recognized ecological standing. Allied to their natural characteristics and geographic location, these areas are of extreme importance for migratory birds to northern and central Europe, especially for aquatic birds and waders. Wetlands, such as the Natural Park of Ria Formosa, Castro Marim, Lagoa dos Salgados, ecosystems are indispensable to about 7 million birds. In these areas you can find birds like the the stone curlew, turnstone, Kentish plover, little tern, the purple gallinule, the flamingo and much more ...
